

Inland Saltwater Anglers Club Member Code of Ethics

- ISWAC Members are first and foremost, gentlemen and ladies. Their adherence to a code of ethics is voluntary and second nature. By adhering to the code, elevates and deserves the respect of being a sportsman
- ISWAC Members always promote conservation and participate in the management of marine resources.
- ISWAC Members never put their personal gain before someone else's safety
- ISWAC Members respect, understand, obey and advance all federal and state fishery laws and regulations.
- ISWAC Members recognize that participation in the fishery is a privilege and comes with a responsibility to ensure future generations have fish to catch by promoting sustainable fisheries management practices.
- ISWAC Members do all they can to minimize their impact on the marine environment and fishery. They try and leave the fishery in better shape than before they entered it.
- ISWAC Members do not keep more fish than legally allowed and encourage each other to take only what they need, not all they can. We don't take a limit just because we can.
- ISWAC Members respect the fish by using proper handling techniques. They are gentle with all fish that are being kept or released.
- ISWAC Members do not litter. They dispose of monofilament and all trash in proper receptacles.
- ISWAC Members share their angling knowledge, skills and techniques to help educate others about angling, conservation and preservation of our marine resources.
- ISWAC Members treat fellow anglers and customers as they would like to be treated. We respect their rights and property.
- ISWAC Members are respectful of other anglers who are fishing and do all they can to give them room or not crowd them
- Above all ISWAC Members appreciate and respect our marine resources and teach others about conservation and responsible fishing techniques. We want future generations to enjoy what we have and promote sustainable fishing.
